Dear [Redacted]

I take this opportunity to join your friends and colleagues at London and Nicosia bureaus in offering congratulations on your retirement after a long career of dedicated service at the Mediterranean and London bureaus. Your performance evaluations over the years are consistent in noting your superior skills as a teletype operator and your pleasant and cheerful manner. These have been important contributions to the overall FBIS effort at a time when we have confronted a major information explosion and the London communications unit has come under increasing pressure.

Your talents will be greatly missed, but you can take pride as you enter this new stage in your life that you have definitely contributed your fair share, both in terms of productivity and in making the London communications section a pleasant working place for your colleagues.

I wish you all the best for a happy and peaceful retirement, whether in England or Cyprus.

Sincerely,
